OUR THEME

FRACTURES BEFORE MIDNIGHT

Presenting to you the theme for AHMUN 8.0: Fractures Before Midnight. At the heart of our theme lies a simple truth, collapse is rarely immediate. Beneath every moment of crisis lie years of pressure, instability, and neglect. The fractures that threaten our world are often invisible, until they become impossible to ignore. As the Doomsday Clock nears midnight, it becomes increasingly urgent to understand these fractures and prevent them from becoming tomorrow's catastrophe.

The world does not break all at once. Every conflict, every disruption, every warning sign is part of a larger story unfolding beneath the surface. With the Doomsday Clock set at just 85 seconds to midnight, which is the closest it has ever been, humanity stands closer than ever to a moment of reckoning. This theme is a call to recognize the pressures building beneath the surface and then come together to set in the reversal of the Doomsday Clock.

Some fault lines cannot be ignored.

Nexora

Step into Nexora, an evening designed not just to impress, but to connect. Rooted in the Greek word for “threads” or “connections,” Nexora embodies everything we believe MUN should be. A space where conversations extend beyond committee walls, where stories are shared, and where alliances turn into friendships.

For delegates, this isn't just another formal gathering; it's a moment to take a breath after the intensity of debate, to trade the policy papers for real conversations, and to discover the people behind the placards. It's a chance to bond with your fellow participants, engage with the Organizing Committee, and speak candidly with the Executive Board members —not as chairs, but as mentors and peers.

The evening offers a chance to unwind, enjoy good food, and connect with fellow delegates in a more relaxed setting. Whether you're discussing committee debates, meeting new people, or simply taking a break from the fast pace of the conference, Nexora provides the perfect space to do so.
